

Dr. Ulisa R. Six

Dr. Ulisa R. Six has a professional background that includes 15 years of solid experience in the corporate arena. Dr. Six has held several progressive managerial positions within the internal auditing and procurement professions. Currently, she is an Enterprise Resource Planning consultant with a fortune 500 company. Her responsibilities include providing input into evaluating, designing, and implementing Oracle Procure-to-Pay modules.

The desire and passion for sharing knowledge led her to become an adjunct instructor at Carlow College where she was responsible for developing and conducting both undergraduate and graduate level courses in Information Technology. In addition, she is a mentor with the Career Literacy for African American Youth (CLAAY) program offered by Duquesne University. Dr. Six also has corporate training experience. She has designed, developed, and delivered curricula for third-party software packages and in-house developed software packages.

Dr. Six graduated from David N. Myers College in 1990 with B.S. in Accounting; she attended Carlow University and received her M.S. in Management and Technology in 2001; and received her Doctorate of Science degree in Information Systems and Communication
